Volume 18 Index

NO. 1, FALL 2007	1–114
NO. 2, WINTER 2007	115–256
NO. 3, SPRING 2008	257–394
NO. 4, SUMMER 2008	395–584

A

"Advancing Nonprofit Organizational Effectiveness Research and Theory: Nine Theses," 399–415

Akan, O. H., "Creating Positive Change in Community Organizations: A Case for Rediscovering Lewin," 485–496

Alessandrini, M., "The Search for Sustainable Communities," review, 111–112

American philanthropy: foundations, donations to, 110; private needs and, 109; strategic giving, 109–110

Articles: "Advancing Nonprofit Organizational Effectiveness Research and Theory: Nine Theses," 399–415; "Collaborations with Faith-Based Social Service Coalitions," 175–191; "Contributions of Unrestricted Funds: The Donor Organization—Public Relationship and Alumni Attitudes and Behaviors," 215–235; "Determinants of Compensation: A Study of Pay, Performance, and Gender Differences for Fundraising Professionals," 435–463; "Employee Creativity in U.S. and Lithuanian Nonprofit Organizations," 465–488; "Evaluating Philanthropic Foundations According to Their Social Values," 417–434; "An expanded Theory of Pluralistic Interactions in Voluntary Nonprofit Organizations," 157–173; "Is There a Glass Ceiling for Women in Development?", 321–339; "Nonprofit Association CEOs: How Their Context Shapes What, How, and Why They Learn," 19–39; "Nonprofit Organizations' Use of the Internet: A Content Analysis of Communication Trends on the Internet Sites of the Philanthropy 400," 59–76; "Nonprofit Versus Corporate Governance: An Economic Approach," 295–320; "Organizational Networks of Collaboration for Community-Based Living," 275–293; "The Relational Determinants of Nonprofit Web Site Fundraising Effectiveness: An Exploratory Study," 141–156; "The Role of Social Anxiety in Volunteering," 41–58; "Street Lamps, Alleys, Ratio Analysis, and Nonprofit Organizations," 5–18; "Three-Phase Capital Campaigns," 261–273; "Urban Congregations as Incubators of Service Organizations," 193–214; "U.S. Nonprofit Organizations' Demand for Temporary Foreign Professionals," 121–140

B

Best practices: organizational effectiveness and, 403–405

Board effectiveness: relation to organizational effectiveness, 401–403, 411

Board performance: emotional commitment of board members and, 403; organizational performance and, 402–403; revenue performance and, 402

Boards That Make a Difference: A New Design for Leadership in Nonprofit and Public Organizations, reviewed, 101–107

Bocarnea, M. C., "Contributions of Unrestricted Funds: The Donor Organization—Public Relationship and Alumni Attitudes and Behaviors," 215–235

Book Reviews: Boards That Make a Difference: A New Design for Leadership in Nonprofit and Public Organizations, 101–107; Broken Trust: Greed, Mismanagement, and Political Manipulation of America's Largest Charitable Trust, 377–380; Community Voices: Creating Sustainable Spaces, 111–112; "Dr. Carver's Odyssey," 101–107; Grassroots NGOs by Women for Women: The Driving Force of Development in India, © 2008 Wiley Periodicals, Inc.

Book Reviews: (continued)
reviewed, 385–389; Hardball Lobbying for Nonprofits: Read Advocacy for Nonprofits in the New Century, 381–382; Lobbying for Social Change, 381, 382–383; "Playing Hardball," 381–383; "The Search for Sustainable Communities," 111–112; Strategic Giving: The Art and Science of Philanthropy, 109–110; "Through a Feminist Lens," 385–389; "Value Added," 109–110; "What Would the Princess Want?", 377–380
Broken Trust: Greed, Mismanagement, and Political Manipulation of America's Largest Charitable Trust, reviewed, 377–380

C

Capital campaign: announcement of campaign to public, 262–263; campaign goals, 263; defined, 261–262; economic theories relevant to phasing, 262–263; impact philanthropists, 263; phases of, 262; public phase, 262; purpose of, 261; quiet phase, 262
Capital campaigns (study): development staff, 271; goal line phase, 269–270; goal theory, 271; growth phase, 269–270; leadership donors, 270; leadership phase, 269–270; likelihood of giving, 266–268; likelihood of giving, at forty percent completion, 270–271; likelihood of giving, at ninety-five percent completion, 271; likelihood of giving, beyond the goal, 271–272; likelihood of giving, early stages of campaign, 270; quiet phase, likelihood of giving in, 266, 271; research method, 264–266; three-phase model, 269
Carver, J., Boards That Make a Difference: A New Design for Leadership in Nonprofit and Public Organizations, reviewed, 101–107
Carver, M. L., "Urban Congregations as Incubators of Service Organizations," 193–214
Chafetz, J. S., "Collaborations with Faith-Based Social Service Coalitions," 175–191
Chisolm, L. B., "What Would the Princess Want?", review, 377–380
Cnaan, R. A., "The Role of Social Anxiety in Volunteering," 41–58
"Collaborations with Faith-Based Social Service Coalitions," 175–191
Community-based living: coordination of community services, 275–276; independent living centers and, 276; innovation, 275–276; nonprofit sector and, 276; transition of disabled persons to, 275
Community-based living, organizational networks of collaboration for (study): actor betweenness centrality, 284–286; budget and, 289; interagency collaboration, 277; limitations of study, 288; methodology, 280–282; network characteristics of local project sites, 287–288; network degree centrality, 283–284; network density, 283; relocation assistance, 289; relocation to community-based setting, 289; strategic bridging structure, 289–290; Texas Community Awareness and Relocation Services Project (CARS), 277–280
Community organizations, positive change (case study): background of organization, 489; benefits of Lewin model, 494–495; client base of organization, 489; client needs evaluation, 492–493; community assessment, 489–490; financial problems, 488; funding base of organization, 489; funding shortages, 488; internal assessment, 485; local perceptions, public survey of, 490–491, 492; marketing approaches, evaluation, 493; mission statement revision, 493; moving/changing, 492–493; planned organizational change, 488–489; priorities, revision of, 493–494; public awareness, 491–492; public image restructure, 492; refreezing, 493–494; self-assessment process, 489; unfreezing, 490–492
Community Voices: Creating Sustainable Spaces, reviewed, 111–112
Compensation determinants, fundraising professionals (study): age, 457; analysis, 443–450; bonus and salary determinants, 456–457; certification, 457; compensation as dependent variable, 441; control variables, 442; data, 441; dependent variable, 441; education, 457; empirical testing, 435–436; fundraising experience, 457; gender, 440–456; human capital effects,

457; independent variable, 442; purpose of study, 436–438; race, 457; sample, 441
Compensation for fundraising professionals: compensation packages, 436; empirical testing, 435–436; factors affecting bonus and salary, 456–457; for-profit sector differentiated, 438–439; full-time status, 456; gender and, 440, 450–456; geographical location, 456, 458; hiring practices, 456–457; incentive pay, 459; mission of nonprofit, 456; nondistribution constraint, 438–439; pay for performance, 438–439, 450, 458; results oriented, 439–440; scrutiny of, 436
Congregation-based service activities: community development, 193; duration of, 193
"Contributions of Unrestricted Funds: The Donor Organization—Public Relationship and Alumni Attitudes and Behaviors," 215–235
Contributions of unrestricted funds to higher education organizations (study): alumni, 216–217, 220, 224; buyer-seller relations, 218; contributions, wise use of, 221; data, 224–228; data analysis, 228; dollar amounts of contributions, 224; donor organization—public (OPR) theory, 230; donor organization—public relationship, 223–224; donor-organizational relationship, 220–221, 222; donor relational connectedness, 223; efficiency of organization, 221; evaluation of nonprofit organizations, 219; external justification, 219, 220; frequency of contributions, 224; internal/external strategic alignment, 217, 230–231; limitations of study, 231–232; literature review, 216–221; marketing of mission, 221; method, 224–228; open systems model, 217, 218–219, 221; organizational donor development, 231; relational connection, 230, 231; relationship marketing, 215–216, 217–218, 220; resource dependence stakeholder theory, 217–218; resource dependency theory, 215–216, 218–219, 220; tax-exempt status of organizations, 220; unrestricted contributions, 222–224; unrestricted resources, 231; viable enterprise scheme, 219
Corporate governance: contractual governance, 297; core problem of, 303; defined, 297; design of governance system, 303; economic approach to analysis of, 296; economics of, 298–304; incomplete contracts, 299, 301–303; investments, 299–301; literature, 295–296; mechanisms, 309; nonprofit governance, compared, 312–316; objectives of governance system, 308–309; quasi-rents, 300–301; research-based analysis of, 295; residual rights of control, 312; specific resources, contribution of, 301–302; stakeholders and, 297, 299, 301–304; traditional view of, 298–299; transactions, types of, 297
"Creating Positive Change in Community Organizations: A Case for Rediscovering Lewin," 485–496
"Creating Stabilizers and Safety Nets for Successor Executors' High-Wire Act," 341–357
Cultural sensitivity in e-mail communications: benefits of e-mail, 77–78; conflict resolution, 86; culture, 80; culture clash, 83; decoupled social bonds, 85; face-threatening act (FTA), 82–83; linguistic politeness, 80–82; misconstrued messages, 85; neutral ground, 84–85; social lubrication, 80; social norms, 83–84; strategies for, 87–90

D

"Determinants of Compensation: A Study of Pay, Performance, and Gender Differences for Fundraising Professionals," 435–463
Dhebar, B. B., "A Nonprofit Manager's Guide to Online Volunteering," 497–506
Donabedian, B., "Street Lamps, Alleys, Ratio Analysis, and Nonprofit Organizations," 5–18
Donor organization—public (OPR) theory: defined, 221; donor connectedness, 222; Huang's model, 221–222; measurement of donor organization relationship, 219; relational nature of, 222
"Dr. Carver's Odyssey," review, 101–107
Driscoll, C., "Creating Stabilizers and Safety Nets for Successor Executors' High-Wire Act," 341–357

E

Ebaugh, H. R., "Collaborations with Faith-Based Social Service Coalitions," 175–191
Efficiency measurement in nonprofit organizations: accounting based financial ratios, 7–9; actual physical output (AU), 12–13; actual units of output, 14; balanced scorecard, 7; charitable output, 9; charitable units, 10; cost allocation methods, 8; current year revenues not spent, 14; decomposition of performance, 13–14; DuPont framework for analyzing return on equity (ROE), 11, 13; efficiency defined, 6, 10; factors affecting organizational performance, 10–13; Financial Accounting Standards Board, 7; financial ratios for, 5–9; functional categories of expenses, 8; fundraising, 8; indices for valuation of outputs, 6; for internal use, 7; organizational strategy, 9; output measurement, 6–7, 9; profitability measures for, 5; program expenses (PE), 12–13; standard measures for whole nonprofit field, 7; standard quality index, 14; standardized efficiency (SE), 11–12; standardized units (SU) produced, 11–13; total expenses (TE), 12–13, 14; total output measurement, 10–11; total program expenses, 14; total revenue (TR), 11–13, 14
Employee creativity: culture and, 466; innovation in nonprofit organizations and, 465–466; organizational performance and, 466; quality of service and, 466; wellbeing and, 466
Employee creativity, cultural differences in United States and Lithuania (study): context dependency, 478; creativity defined, 471; cultures compared, 466–467; demographic characteristics, 472; education systems compared, 478; findings, 473–477; group climate, 469, 472; hierarchical levels, 478–479; hypotheses, 467–470; independent variables, relationships between, 475–477; job characteristics, 469–470, 472; leadershiip behavior measurement, 471–472; leadershiip behaviors, 468; management styles, 480; management traditions compared, 467; methodology, 470–472; motivational orientation, 470, 472, 480; organizational culture, 468–469; organizational norms, 472, 480; predictors of creativity, 478; sample, 470–471; sample characteristics, 473–475; study limitations, 479; survey instrument, 471–472; translation of questionnaire, 471
Employee creativity, cultural differences (study): collectivist culture, Lithuania, 467; context of study, 466–467; individualist culture, United States, 466–467
"Employee Creativity in U.S. and Lithuanian Nonprofit Organizations," 465–488
Engagement in community, 110–111
"Evaluating Philanthropic Foundations According to Their Social Values," 417–434
Executive succession planning in healthcare organization (case study): CEO, development of organizational succession plan for, 346–347; common executive coach, introduction of, 350–351; data analysis, 344; data sources, 343–344; executive change as loss, 345; executive change as positive contribution, 344–345; family businesses and, 352–353; impact of executive departures, 344–346; linkages and stabilizers, 346–348; literature, 342; methodology, 343–344; organizational culture and, 352; participative leadership style, adoption of, 348; relay succession, 346–347; restructure into strategic business units, 347–348, 352; safety nets, 349–351, 352; sampling, 344; strategic plan, development of, 348; succession planning defined, 341; succession system, 352; time line of, 352; timely departures, planning of, 349; values-based culture, preservation of, 352; values fit, ensuring, 349; values of future leaders, entrenchment of, 350, 352
"An expanded Theory of Pluralistic Interactions in Voluntary Nonprofit Organizations," 157–173

F

Faith-based organizations: composition of, 176; roots of, 176; urban congregations

(See Urban congregation spin-off of community service entities (study))
Faith-based social service coalitions, collaborations with (study): civic organizations, collaboration with, 181, 182; collaboration, defined, 180–181; data analysis, 180–187; faith-based social service coalition, defined, 179; forms of collaboration, 180; funding collaboration, 180; government agencies, collaboration with, 181, 182; government funding, 182–184, 186; intensity of collaboration, 182, 185–186; literature review, 176–178; medical organizations, collaboration with, 181; methods, 178–180; nonprofit coalitions, 175; other faith-based organizations, collaboration with, 181–182; programmatic collaboration, 180, 181; range of collaborations, 182; religion, coalition policies and practices regarding, 184–186, 187; secular nonprofits, collaboration with, 181, 182; size of coalition, 186–187; special-purpose coalitions, collaboration with, 181, 182; types of organizations collaborated with, 181; volunteer collaboration, 180
Features: Case Studies: "Creating Positive Change in Community Organizations: A Case for Rediscovering Lewin," 485–496; "Creating Stabilizers and Safety Nets for Successor Executors' High-Wire Act," 341–357
Features: From the Field: "A Nonprofit Manager's Guide to Online Volunteering," 497–506; "Leadership Development Inside-Out in Africa," 359–375; "The Perils of E-mail Communications in Nonprofits," 77–99
Feeney, S., Grassroots NGOs by Women for Women: The Driving Force of Development in India, reviewed, 385–389
Foreign professionals. See Temporary foreign professionals, demand for Frumpkin, P., Strategic Giving: The Art and Science of Philanthropy, reviewed, 109–110

G

Grassroots NGOs by Women for Women: The Driving Force of Development in India, reviewed, 385–389

H

Handy, F., Grassroots NGOs by Women for Women: The Driving Force of Development in India, reviewed, 385–389
Hardball Lobbying for Nonprofits: Read Advocacy for Nonprofits in the New Century, reviewed, 381–382
Herman, R. D., "Advancing Nonprofit Organizational Effectiveness Research and Theory: Nine Theses," 399–415
Hessenius, B., Hardball Lobbying for Nonprofits: Read Advocacy for Nonprofits in the New Century, reviewed, 381–382

I

Insourcing: advantages of, 123; educational level of visa recipients, 125; factors affecting H-1B visa strategy, 125–127; labor demand strategy, 123–125; prevailing wage and, 126–127; process for obtaining visas, 124–125; resource base necessary for, 125–126; union interests and, 126–127; visa programs for, 124
Internet fundraising: communication characteristics analysis, 67–70; content of web sites, 65–66; description of traditional giving program on web site, 61–62, 67; development of relationships with donors, 71–72; donation processing, 66–67; expansion beyond one-time donations, 61; gratitude displays for donors, 67; history of, 59–60; interactivity, 66; literature review, 60–64; live chat, 71; online stores, 67; public relations and fundraising, 61–62; public relations defined, 61; receipts for donations, 67; stewardship, 62; web design and, 63–64
Internet fundraising (study): future research, 73; limitations, 72–73; literature review, 64–65; methodology, 64–65; Philanthropy 400, 65; results, 65–70; sampling, 65
"Is There a Glass Ceiling for Women in Development?", 321–339

J

James, R., "Leadership Development Inside-Out in Africa," 359–375

Jaskyte, K., "Employee Creativity in U.S. and Lithuanian Nonprofit Organizations," 465–488
Jay, E., "The Relational Determinants of Nonprofit Web Site Fundraising Effectiveness: An Exploratory Study," 141–156

K

Kassam, M., Grassroots NGOs by Women for Women: The Driving Force of Development in India, reviewed, 385–389
King, S. P., Broken Trust: Greed, Mismanagement, and Political Manipulation of America's Largest Charitable Trust, reviewed, 377–380
Kinney, N. T., "Urban Congregations as Incubators of Service Organizations," 193–214

L

Labor market conditions. See Temporary foreign professionals, demand for Leadership development in Africa (study): acceptance of responsibility, 363; aspirations, 370; catalysts of change, 367–369; coaching, 372; conflicting concepts of leadership, 365–367; congested lives of leaders, 363–365; content of leadership change, 362–363; cultural perspectives on leadership, 365–366; determination, 370; donor demands, 364; examples from others, 368–369; female leaders, 364–365; HIV/AIDS prevalence and, 365; inner security, 369; inspiration from others, 368–369; internalization of change, 369–370; leadership development programs, 371–372; leadership roles, changes in, 367; literature, 360; mentoring, 372; negative feedback, 368; neopatrimonial models of leadership, 365, 366–367; openness to change, 369–370; organizational crisis, 367–368; participatory leadership style, 362–363; personal demands on leaders, 364; personal discomfort or pain, 368; position threatened, 368; positive leadership development interventions, 368; process of leadership change, 363–371; reinforcement of change, 370; research context, 362; self-confidence, 363; sense of self, 369; spirituality, 369; support from boards, 364; use of power, 362; values and beliefs, 369; Western management theory, 365, 367
"Leadership Development Inside-Out in Africa," 359–375
Lewin model of planned change: description of, 487; moving/changing stage, 488, 492–493; refreezing stage, 488, 493–494; role in planned organizational change, 489; strategic planning and, 486; unfreezing stage, 487–488, 490–492; use in nonprofit organizational assessment and development, 494–495
Lindahl, W. E., "Three-Phase Capital Campaigns," 261–273
Lobbying for Social Change, reviewed, 381, 382–383

M

McKee, M. C., "Creating Stabilizers and Safety Nets for Successor Executors' High-Wire Act," 341–357
Medley, B. C., "Creating Positive Change in Community Organizations: A Case for Rediscovering Lewin," 485–496
Mesch, D. J., "Determinants of Compensation: A Study of Pay, Performance, and Gender Differences for Fundraising Professionals," 435–463
Moore, L. L., "Is There a Glass Ceiling for Women in Development?", 321–339
Murray, V., "Dr. Carver's Odyssey," review, 101–107

N

Nathan, M. L., "Nonprofit Association CEOs: How Their Context Shapes What, How, and Why They Learn," 19–39
Nonprofit association CEO learning experiences (study), 19–35; board relations, learning about, 25–26, 28, 30–31, 33–35; contextual learning, 20, 29–30, 32–33; data analysis, 23–24; data collection, 22; data reduction techniques, 28; executive coaches, 34; experiential learning and job success, 19–20, 29; influencing tactics, 32; limitations, 24; limits of peer relationships, 28; longitudinal research, 31–32; method, 21; narrative synthesis, 28–29; performance, learning about, 27–28; phenomenological research design, 21; phenomenological research method, 28; recommendations for practice, 32–35; reflections for learning, 27, 28, 29, 33; relationship oriented learning, 27–28; results, 24–29; role of CEO, 20–21; sample, 22–23; self as CEO, learning about, 27; staff relations, learning about, 26; successful governance and, 32; theoretical framework, 20; trustworthiness, 24; vulnerability, 28–29, 31

"Nonprofit Association CEOs: How Their Context Shapes What, How, and Why They Learn," 19–39

Nonprofit governance, economic approach: corporate governance compared, 312–316; donors and, 306–306; efficiency issues, 298; efficient cooperation, 298; external reporting, 311; mechanisms of governance, 309–312; multistakeholder relations, 313; objectives of governance system, 308–309; primary stakeholders, 309–311; purpose of, 298; residual rights of control, 304, 308, 309–310; shareholders as primary stakeholders, 304–306; stakeholders and, 298, 304–308, 313–316, 317

"Nonprofit Manager's Guide to Online Volunteering, A," 497–506

Nonprofit organizations, measurement of efficiency. See Efficiency measurement in nonprofit organizations

"Nonprofit Organizations' Use of the Internet: A Content Analysis of Communication Trends on the Internet Sites of the Philanthropy 400," 59–76

"Nonprofit Versus Corporate Governance: An Economic Approach," 295–320

O

Online volunteering (study): collaborative work, 503; commitment, evaluation of, 501; communication, 501–504; conceptualization of volunteering program, 499–500; data, 498–499; duration of volunteer assignments, 500; evaluation of experience by volunteers, 504; expectations, communication of, 501; feedback, gathering of, 504; follow-up with rejected applicants, 502; goals for, 498; internal monitoring, 504–505; international online volunteer exchanges, 498; methodology, 499; methods of communication, 503; motivations of volunteers, 500–501; online volunteer assignments, common, 499; planning, 499–501; resources, 505–506; response time for communications, 503; routine communication, value of, 502–504; success, elements for, 498; time requirements for volunteer assignments, 500; uses for online volunteer management, 497

Organizational change: emergent change processes, 486; organizational development, 487; planned change processes, 486–487

Organizational effectiveness: board practices and, 401–403; capacity building and, 412; correct management practices and, 403–404; defined through comparison, 400–401; interpretation of activities, 404; multidimensional nature of, 401; network levels of effectiveness and, 407, 409; organization levels of effectiveness and, 407, 408–409; outcomes assessment and, 411–412; program evaluation and, 411–412; program levels of effectiveness and, 407–408; social construction and, 404, 405, 410–411; types of organizations and, 406–407

Organizational effectiveness, indicators of: best practices, 403–405; board performance, 401–403; efficiency, 401; financial criteria, 401; increased growth, 403; multiple criteria, 401; nonfinancial criteria, 401; responsiveness, 405–406

"Organizational Networks of Collaboration for Community-Based Living," 275–293

Organizational performance: board performance and, 402–403; employee creativity and, 466; interpersonal board competency and, 402–403

P

Paulin, S., Community Voices: Creating Sustainable Spaces, reviewed, 111–112

"Perils of E-mail Communications in Nonprofits, The," 77–99
Perlmutter, F.D.: "Through a Feminist Lens," review, 385–389
Philanthropic foundations: assessment defined, 422–423; defined, 417–418; evaluation defined, 423; evaluation methods of, 417; external evaluation, 423; internal evaluation, 423; vision of, 417; visions of better world by, 418–419
Philanthropic foundations, social values: budget worksheet, 427; budgeting according to, 426–428; consistency evaluation, 429–431; conveyance by grants and program priorities, 428; evaluation, 428–431; identification and measurement, 424–426; list of, 421; mission of foundation and, 422; organizational values defined, 420; referent for performance evaluation, 423; social values account statement, 429; social values consistency worksheet, 430; social values defined, 419–420; social values units (SVUs), 426
Pipes, P. F., "Collaborations with Faith-Based Social Service Coalitions," 175–191
Planned organizational change: community organizations and, 488–489; Lewin model and, 489; strategic planning, 488–489
"Playing Hardball," review, 381–383
Pluralistic interactions in voluntary organizations (study): activity contexts, 163–165; bounded relational demands, 160; data analysis, 162; data collection, 161–162; diversity research, 157–158; effective interactions, 162–165, 167; ethnic bridging of social capital, 158–159; group composition, 165–166; ineffective interactions, 165–166, 168; key diversity conditions, 160; key diversity processes, 159; learning, importance of, 167–168, 169; limitations of study, 170; methodology, 160–161; mission-relevant interactions, 159; organizational identification, 167, 168; organizationally distinctive routines, 159; recategorization, 159, 167; representation-interaction model of diversity, 158–160; shared organizational know-how, 160; social capital, 159, 168–169; structure for success, 160; structuring of task interactions, 168; sustained periodic interaction, 160, 169; task structure, 162–163; volunteer social networks, 159
Policy governance model for boards, 102–106
Poole, D. L., "Organizational Networks of Collaboration for Community-Based Living," 275–293
Private foundation funding of higher education civic engagement (case study): Carnegie Corporation of New York, 241–242; Pew Charitable trusts, 242–243; priority shifts by foundations, 241–248; reasons for, 240; transformation of higher education institutions, 243–245; W.K. Kellogg Foundation, 243–245; youth voting as foundation priority, 242–243
Private foundations: accountability of, 238, 239, 246–247, 249–250; funding priorities of, 238–239; improvement of public good, record of, 238; independence, exercise of, 239, 247–248, 249–250; innovation by, 246, 249–250; innovation potential of, 237–238; as innovators, 239; researcher access to, 238; tax-exempt status of, 238

R

Ranade, B., Grassroots NGOs by Women for Women: The Driving Force of Development in India, reviewed, 385–389
"The Relational Determinants of Nonprofit Web Site Fundraising Effectiveness: An Exploratory Study," 141–156
Religious congregations: creation of autonomous organizations, 194; defined, 195; philanthropy of, 194; philanthropy to, 193–194; revitalization of local communities and, 193–194; tax treatment and government funding, 195
Renz, D. O., "Advancing Nonprofit Organizational Effectiveness Research and Theory: Nine Theses," 399–415
Richan, W. C., Lobbying for Social Change, reviewed, 381, 382–383
"The Role of Social Anxiety in Volunteering," 41–58
Rooney, P. M., "Determinants of Compensation: A Study of Pay, Performance, and Gender Differences for Fundraising Professionals," 435–463

Roth, R. W., Broken Trust: Greed, Mismanagement, and Political Manipulation of America's Largest Charitable Trust, reviewed, 377–380

S

Salipante, P. F., Jr., "An expanded Theory of Pluralistic Interactions in Voluntary Nonprofit Organizations," 157–173
Sampson, S. D., "Is There a Glass Ceiling for Women in Development?", 321–339
Sargeant, A., "The Relational Determinants of Nonprofit Web Site Fundraising Effectiveness: An Exploratory Study," 141–156
"The Search for Sustainable Communities," review, 111–112
Seshadri, S., "The Perils of E-mail Communications in Nonprofits," 77–99
Sherlock, J. J., "Nonprofit Association CEOs: How Their Context Shapes What, How, and Why They Learn," 19–39
Smith, S., "Value Added," review, 109–110
Social anxiety and volunteer recruitment: apprehension, 44; concept of social anxiety, 42–43; decision points, 42–43; diversity of volunteer populations, 44; friend, importance in recruitment, 45, 53–54; mentoring program, 53–54; money donation in lieu of volunteering, 45–46, 54–55; parent, importance in recruitment, 53–54; social anxiety defined, 43–44; social anxiety disorder, 43; social shyness, 43–44; virtual online volunteering, 54; volunteer recruitment fallacy, 43; by youth, 53–54
Social anxiety and volunteer recruitment (study): conclusion, 52–55; hypotheses, 45–46, 48–52; instrumentation, 47–48; methods, 46–48; research design, 47; results, 48–52; sample, 46–47
Speckbacher, G., "Nonprofit Versus Corporate Governance: An Economic Approach," 295–320
Stokes, B., "A Nonprofit Manager's Guide to Online Volunteering," 497–506
Strategic Giving: The Art and Science of Philanthropy, reviewed, 109–110
"Street Lamps, Alleys, Ratio Analysis, and Nonprofit Organizations," 5–18
Sustainable communities: community-level sustainable businesses, 111; indigenous policy and activism, 111; mental health and, 111; political ecology, case studies, 111; social movements, history and theory, 111; in Western Australia, 111; youth participation in government, 111

T

Temporary foreign professionals, demand for: literature, 121–122
Temporary foreign professionals, demand for (study): appropriateness of foreign workers, 134–137; contingent employment, 122; cross-national mobility, professional workers, 122–123; data sources, 127; denied applications, patterns in, 131–134; diversity-related issues, 135; government management of visa program, 136; H-1B visas, 122; insourcing (See Insourcing); NTEE classification, 130–131; occupational groups, 133–134; organizational learning and, 136; organizations which pursue insourcing, 130–131; permanent employees and, 135; personal career development, 136; resourcing base, relationship to application submission, 131; sampling, 127–128; size of organization, 134; variables, 128–130; wage offers, 132–133, 137
"Three-Phase Capital Campaigns," 261–273
"Through a Feminist Lens," review, 385–389
Tinkelman, D., "Street Lamps, Alleys, Ratio Analysis, and Nonprofit Organizations," 5–18
Tschirhart, M., "U.S. Nonprofit Organizations' Demand for Temporary Foreign Professionals," 121–140

U

Urban congregation formation of community service entities (study): autonomy, rapid move to, 204; clergy, 202, 209; congregational assistance, 210; emancipation, in incubation, 208; financial support, in incubation, 204–206; governance, in incubation,

Urban congregation formation of community service entities (study): (continued) 207–208; housing insecurity problems, 210–211; incubation activity, 204–208, 210; incubator, defined, 204; individual initiative, 202–203; innovators, 200–202, 209; methodology, 198–199; personal growth opportunities, 209; physical space, in incubation, 204–205; potential benefits for congregation, 210; professional advancement opportunity, 209; range of services, 211; sample, 197–198; skills transfer, in incubation, 206–207; specialized services, need for, 203–204; spin-off, defined, 195–197; spin-off ties to congregation, 200–202; subgroup initiative, 202–204

Urban congregation spin-off of community service entities (study): literature, 195–197; public policy implications, 194

"Urban Congregations as Incubators of Service Organizations," 193–214

"U.S. Nonprofit Organizations' Demand for Temporary Foreign Professionals," 121–140

V

"Value Added," review, 109–110

Volunteer recruitment: methods of, 41; personal asking, 41–42; phases of, 42; social anxiety and (See Social anxiety and volunteer recruitment); surveys of volunteers and nonvolunteers, 42

W

Waters, R. D., "Nonprofit Organizations' Use of the Internet: A Content Analysis of Communication Trends on the Internet Sites of the Philanthropy 400," 59–76

Web site fundraising effectiveness (study): accessibility of site, 143; charities currently using, 141–142; content assessment of web sites, 145, 147–150; costs, 152–153; data capture, 145–146; description of donation goals, 143; e-relationship marketing, 142–145; fundraising performance, 144; interaction, 143–144; measurement, 145, 146–147; personal data, management of, 143; personalization of site, 144; purpose of web sites, 153; quality of information provided at site, 144, 152; quality of service to donors, 143; relational criteria, correlation with performance, 148–152; relationship marketing defined, 142; research strategy, 145–150

Weisinger, J. Y., "An expanded Theory of Pluralistic Interactions in Voluntary Nonprofit Organizations," 157–173

West, D. C., "The Relational Determinants of Nonprofit Web Site Fundraising Effectiveness: An Exploratory Study," 141–156

"What Would the Princess Want?," review, 377–380

Whitman, J. R., "Evaluating Philanthropic Foundations According to Their Social Values," 417–434

Wise, L. R., "U.S. Nonprofit Organizations' Demand for Temporary Foreign Professionals," 121–140

Women in development, glass ceiling (study): best practices for gender equity, 335–336; education levels by gender, 329; experience level by gender, 329, 334; fundraising field, 329, 334; glass ceiling, defined, 321–322; job dropout and gender, 331–332; job titles by gender, 327–329, 334; nonprofit boards and, 324; nonprofit fundraising and, 324; nonprofit sector, 322; organization type and gender, 329; organizational budget and gender, 330, 334–335; pay equity, 322, 323–324; pension plan by gender, 329, 334; research methodology, 325; salary distribution, 334; satisfaction with salary levels by gender, 329; wage disparity and glass ceiling, 333–335; wage gap between men and women, 321–322; wage gap over time, 332–333; weighted average salary, 326–327; women in management, 322, 323

Wright, M. H., "Contributions of Unrestricted Funds: The Donor Organization—Public Relationship and Alumni Attitudes and Behaviors," 215–235

Wyland, M. L., "Playing Hardball," review, 381–383